The party reached Boston Wednesday and inspected the plant of Beggs & Cobb Company and the Whitney Machine Company, at Winchester, and the Stoneham Tanning Company. The Turner Tanning Machine Company at Peabody was visited Thursday. Members of the party, quartered at the American house, found time for individual excursions about the city Thursday night.

The course is conducted in cooperation with the National Association of Tanners, contributions from which support seven scholarships of $250 apiece in the tanning course and two fellowships of $400 each the course in applied leather chemistry. Many of the students are graduates of other educational institutions

In the tanning class the students are continuing investigations begun last year into unhairing processes now in use. Of the tanners' appropriations, $2000 is devoted to pay for the extra time and practical processes and methods.

Dr. Rogers says that the institute is trying not so much to train chemists as to produce foremen and to this end one of the boys in each of the groups is assigned as foreman over his five helpers for one week. The floor space used in school work is divided into model factories and the regular processes and new methods as they come out are carried through every stage of the manufacture.

The product of the school is sold at cost in order to furnish more money for manufacture to give the students a commercial appreciation of the value of their work. It thus becomes the endeavor of each one to manufacture on a paying

Dr. Rogers states that the special classes in tannery and applied leather chemistry were started last year with 18 men. All those students are at present employed in tanneries throughout the country, he says, and the present class is 50 per cent larger than last year.

GYM TEAM FEEL SURE OF VICTORIOUS YEAR

Look Forward With Confidence to Success at Intercollegiate Meet at Princeton-Eight Veterans Out

IN FINE CONDITION

Expectations are running high among the members of the Harvard gymnastic team that they will be able to sweep all before them this season, and that they will come out ahead at the intercollegiate meet to be held at Princeton March 28.

Four periods of hard and earnest practise are being held each week, and under the direction of Instructor Schraeder, great progress is being made, especially among the new members of the squad.

Preparations are being made for nine exhibitions at preparatory schools throughout the state, including Exeter and Andover, and it is expected that a large squad will go to each exhibition, As the members of the team are so evenly matched and in such perfect form that it is hard to choose among them. The team is allowed 10 exhibitions year, including the intercollegiate meet held this year at Princeton.

As yet no regular schedule has been arranged for the meets with the other colleges. The only competitions definitely arranged for are the ones with Amherst, Feb. 15, and with Brown, March 8, though in all probability there will be a duel meet with the University of the City of New York Feb. 7, and the chances are that Columbia and Rutgers will be on the list.

Stevens, secretary of the Women's Homestead Association, said today that farmers near the city would be only too glad to find a market for them at this price. She said that the women who are touring the country around Weymouth, North Reading. Worcester and other places are sending encouraging reports about the large sup plies of eggs on band. She also said that eggs form only one part of her plan, which embraced many other foodstuffs.

Mrs. Stevens recommends Malden as a distributing point and automobile trucks as the means of transporting eggs to certain centers in Boston. She said that many farmers have signified their intention to transfer their business to the association on condition that it shall take all they produce. The cooperation of many members of the association who have henneries is assured.

Joseph J. Wall, president of the Goldsmith Wall Company, said that about four months will elapse before fresh eggs can be brought down to the figure given by Mrs. Stevens: He points out that there are many grades of eggs and that from one case might be selected four or five different kinds. Even certain fresh eggs are sold cheap. If they are small they do not command so high a price as the larger eggs.

AT BOWDOIN TO OPEN IN JANUARY

BRUNSWICK, Me .- With the opening of the new gymnasium and Gen. Thomas Worcester Hyde athletic building after the Christmas recess Bowdoin College will be equipped to meet all requirements for modern indoor training and exercise. The new structure was erected and equipped at a cost of $115,000.

The gymnasium is situated between Sargent gymnasium and the observatory and the Athletic building is located at the east of the gymnastum, with a single wall between. The work of clearing the ground was begun last January and the cornerstone was laid in June.

The architecture of the new buildings is colonial. The gymnasium and athletic building together cover 30,400 square feet of ground and are 100 yards in length. The front of the gymnasium is marked with a cut granite entrance surmounted by the Bowdoin scal, and on each side of the heavy oak door are bronze lanterns.

FRONT CLOSING FASHIONABLE CHOOSING TOYS FOR CHILDREN

Gozen made in semi-princess style

WOMEN are always glad to welcome the gowns that are closed at the front for they are easy to adjust. This one gives the pretty surplice line and is made in semi-princess style with the waist and skirt joined beneath the girdle. It includes the kimono sleeves, too, and these sleeves, while they share their popularity with other makes, fre much in vogue and for many figures are to be preferred to any others. The skirt is

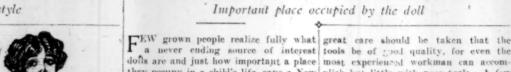

In this case, the gown is made of a pretty silk and wool material with trimming of satin and the chemisette and under sleeves are of lace. Simple gowns of this kind are charming made from many materials, however. There is π very great liking for chiffon broadcloth and for prunella cloth.

This season charmense satin is made in this way and among novelty materials are shown many variations. Poplin is a favorite, both in silk and wool, and pop-lin would be pretty made after this model with the collar and cuffs either of silk

Wool embroidery is being extensively used just now and a very smart effect could be obtained by embroidering the collar and cuffs with crewels in simple design. Such embroidery often gives a touch of color that is in every way attractive. The chemisette is quite separate and is closed at the back and the under sleeves are attached to the sleeves beneath the trimming.

For the medium size, the gown will require 7½ yards of material 27, 6¾ yards 36 or 4¾ 44 inches wide with ¾ yard 27 inches wide for trimming, 1 yard 18 inches wide for the chemisette and under sleeves. The width of the skirt is 21/4 yards at the lower edge.

The pattern of the gown (7156) is cut ton agency, or will be sent by mail. Adin sizes from 34 to 42 inches bust measure. It can be bought at any May Man-New York, or Masonic Temple, Chicago.

FRUIT FRITTERS Almost any kind of fruit may be served n the form of fritters. Apples, bananas, pears, oranges, peaches, etc., are all suitable for this form of entree. Apples should be pared, cored and cut into round slices about half an inch thick. They may be seasoned with a little lemon juice and nutmeg if these flavors are liked. Bananas should be cut into round slices about an inch thick, or they may be cut in halves and split. Pears may be cut in quarters, while oranges may be divided into sections or cut in slices, care being taken to remove the seeds. For ax peo ple use half a pint of flour, one gill of milk, two teaspoons of sugar, half a tea-spoon of salt, two tablespoons of melted butter and two eggs for the batter. In preparing fritters beat egg whites separately and add just before using. If in tended for fruit add a teaspoon of sugar and if for meat or fish a tablespoon of lemon juice or vinegar, as thin batter is preferable to thick. Use plenty of lard and be sure that it is hot enough before you begin to cook. When the frying is done the lard remaining can be carefully strained to use again. Never mix the fat in which fruit fritters, vegetables or fish have been fried. Keep in separate vessels. - San Francisco Call.

ANGELL MEMORIAL CROWD ATTENDING

After the opening exercises at the eorge T. Angell memorial fountain and shaft in Postoflice square this noon the drivers of five teams raced their horses up to have the first drink from the agh of the structure built to hono the founder of the Society for the Pre cention of Cruelty to Animals. When the police gave the word after he speaking the crowd parted and the orses trotted up. The first to get a frink was driven by Thomas J. Larkin i an Adams & Swett Company team. Dr. Francis II. Rowley, president of the society, and Mayor Fitzgerald adthe square during the raising of a flag which was the gift of the city. Mrs. George T. Augell, widow of the first president of the society, was present together with a number of prominent Trading on the New York stock exchange today had a more generally cheerful aspect than it has had for some time and although special stocks were especially favored the quite brisk buying that marked trading from the first was well distributed throughout the list. The execution of orders to buy was said to be accompanied by a good deal of enthusiasm on the floor of the exchange and the interests involved were understood to represent "bullish" operators and banking interests.

Accompanying the waves of purchases that were present in the market was an urgent covering of shorts wherever accumulative orders made their appear-The action of the market today differed from that of yesterday, however, in that the strength was more uniform and prices remained very steady at the higher level.

Union Pacific was the particular feature of the trading on account of its rapid advance in the first half-hour to 160%, and later to 160%, the highest point at which it has sold for some time lately. VOTE ON STOCK ISSUE The management of the Maine Central railroad has at length decided to finance its needs through a further stock issue, it is understood. The new issue this time will be 100,000 shares, par $100 each. For the purpose of authorizing it, a meeting will be called Jan. 8 to "see whether the stockholders will vote to fix the capital stock, at present $15,000,000, by adding thereto $10,000,000 divided into 100,000 shares of the par value of $100 each, so that the capital stock shall be fixed for the present at $25,000,000, divided into 250,000 shares of the par value of $100 each and will authorize the directors to determine the manner of issuing and disposing of the same, the proceeds of such issue to be used for retiring the floating debt of the company." Maine Central has $12,000,000 one-year per cent notes coming due March 15 next, issued to provide funds for the pay-ment of $15,484,000 matured bonds and notes. On April 1, 1914, $2,000,000 fiveyear coupon notes of the road are

SUMMIT GOLD MAKES

The following brief report of the Summit Gold, Mining Company's operations underground workings on the Keystone ing the high, low and last sales to 2:30 vein, has been submitted by President p. m. today: W. A. Eaton to stockholders:

"Three additional claims have been added to the company's holdings, namely the Crown Point, Lone Tree and the Bull Moose, about 55 acres in all, of valuable ground, making our total holdings about "Construction work on the Madison

Valley railroad from Three Forks to Radersburg, after several months' inactivity, has lately been started again, and every assurance is given that the road will be completed to Radersburg early in the coming spring. "The Keystone tunnel has been driven to a total length of 1014 feet. The vein, which has been continuous in this tunnel from its mouth, varying in width from a few inches to 10 feet, has a width of about a foot in the present face, and we anticipate that much new ore will developed by its further extension. "All the development work, under-taken by this company, has thus far been upon the Keystone vein, although there is no reason why the Crown Point and Keywest veins should not each make as good, or better, showing upon development, as their surface showings are equal, or superior, to the Keystone's. "At a point in the Keystone tunnel, about 350 feet from its mouth, a raise is being put to the surface for a main working shaft. This raise is now up 45 feet, and will reach the surface in about westinghouse cv 97% 96% 97% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 100% 101 1 50 feet more. There is considerable difference of opinion with regard to the value of the company's plant and the probable value of its deferred stock, which has risen from 120, earlier in the year, to over 150 per £100 of stock. Therefore arbitration proceedings are now under way to determine the actual value for use in days at the present rate of sinking. And the balance of undistributed profit at Dec. 31, 1911, transferred to the reserve fund acct., as shown by the report of the directors.

Balance£12,172,002

The president of the company made the following statement with -reference to the nature of the reserve fund account, in addressing the shareholders at the meeting on July 23, 1908: "The reserve fund is intended to cover depreciation which has not found its way into the accounts, and which might find its way there as the result of the arbitration.' This explanation of the reserve fund account has always been consistently given, thus showing pretty clearly that, in order to be on the safe side, the amount must be deducted from the expenditure on construction Assuming on this basis, then that the company is awarded the sum of £12,172,. 002 as the value of the plant, this amount will doubtless be paid to the pany in cash or its equivalent, less £1,474,569-the "proportion of subscriptions and rentals in respect of periods tions and rentals in respect of periods extending beyond Dec. 31, 1911, including earning independent mining concerns in 47% in October, and the preferred went dividend of 1% per cent on preferred on the balance sheet-so that the net amount payable to the company, after allowing for this liability, which must be taken over by the postoffice, will, in that case, be £10.697.523.

Large payments on account of the awarded have been made by the postoffice to the company during the current year, but these must, of course, be disregarded in considering the position at Dec. 31, 1911, assuming on the balance sheet figures that the net amount payable by the postoffice, after deducting the liability to be taken over, will be £10.697.523.

According to the balance sheet the com pany would then have available to pay off its liabilities to shareholders, debenture holders, and others the following amount in cash or its equivalent:

Net payment from the postoffice £10,697,523 Cash and investments in hand off Dec 31, 1911, as per balance sheet

Subject to the question of costs, this mount would be applicable to discharge ing the company's obligations as follows 3.183,780

As the preferred stockholders are entitled to be paid off at 105 per cent they would, in fact, receive £111,250 more than the amount shown above. which sum would have to come out of the pockets of the deferred stockholders, Plants, goodwill, etc.

It should be observed that the postoffice is to purchase the plant only, and expenditure shown on the balance sheet day afternoon discussing the "money consists wholly of the cost of plant, trust" investigation, but at the concluface of the balance sheet propose the board carefully went over the situation the balance sheet figures, have to be its position in the financial world. The year ending with the current Dec. 20. in the history of the American Can Com. has declared the regular quarterly divipany, says the Wall Street Journal. The empany is operating all of its factories and has all of its warehouses well supplied with stock materials. It is figured in the neighborhood of $8,300,000, compared with $5,416,339 last year and after depreciation, will be equal to about The transfer books will not be closed. 10 per cent on the common stock, after deducting the full 7 per cent on the preferred. Last year the company showed depreciation charges of $2,500,000, an able Jan. 1 to stock of record Dec. 15. increase of approximately $2,000,000 over 1910. These depreciation charges seem excessive in view of previous charges to the same account, which were generally considered liberal The cash account increased about the same as the deprecia tion account, showing that a large part of the depreciation represented cash. This has been a big year with the American Can Company in more than earnings. At the last meeting of the directors it was voted to increase the preferred dividend from 5 per cent to 7 annually, the first payment at the new ment of 1/4 per cent on the accrued dividends on the preferred stock was also declared payable at the same time. When they increased the dividend and made the initial back payment the directors let it be known that future payments on the able Jan. 1 to stock of record Dec. 21. accumulation would be increased from time to time whenever the directors adjudged earnings sufficient to allow this.

The American Can Company is at present manufacturing more than 40,000 different products out of tin plate. Speaking of the Sultan, Moulay Youssef, the general said that he had for France a sympathy which he believed was really sincere. He was strongly religious, his private life was such as to command the love and respect of all the tribes, he enjoyed the highest influence with them of any Sultan since Moulay Hassan, and there was no question whatever as to his placing the ben efit of this influence at their disposa As for the Caids, General Lyautey found them very intelligent and well informed. even reading the French newspapers and keeping in touch with their political debates and the economical development that was going on in France.

New Revenue Expected

The general then proceeded to speak of the finance of Morocco. He said that this year's budget would amount to some 16,000,000 of francs of expenditure, which would be met fully by the natural resources of the country. He even hoped to obtain some new sources of revenue from the customs and by the revision of certain landed estates, which had been diverted by Moulay Hafid, the late Sultan, but which would be made to revert to the country.

He stated that he had already had some conversation with M. Klotz, the minister of finance, with regard to the proposed public works which could only be carried out by means of a loan, the exact amount of which was not yet definitely fixed, but would not be less than 300,000,000 of francs. This loan would, he said, be amply guaranteed by the normal revenue of the country. In reply to a question of M. Rozet, the general said that he was planning to establish a Berber school and the idea had been received with acclamation by the native population. General Lyautey's statement occupied some three hours, and made a marked impression on the committee. He was afterwards warmly congratulated by the president, M. Barthou, upon the successful accomplishment of the mission that had been entrusted to his hands by the government, and also for the clearness of the information he had

Now piano is an Italian word and of The Oxford dictionary says it pe-amst, with the accent on the first syllable, following the usual English habit of throwing the accent as near the beginning of the word as possible. This usage is probably in this case also traceable to the Italian pronunciation of this word, which would be pi-an-is-ta, with the accent on the rd syllable. To accent the third syllable involves a slight accent on the first syllable, and it is probable that with the Italian and French sounds of this word much in the ear the English people have not had the impulse to accent the syllable containing the a. But to Americans to accent the second syllable seems the natural thing, since this syllable has the accent in the word piano or pianoforte and the word pianist is spelled in English without

Germany and the United Kingdom

THE identity of the interests of the two great branches of the German family, in the near east particularly, but generally throughout the world, is a fact which has been dealt with persistently in these columns. To people trained to believe that dreadnoæghts were invented for the specific object of engulfing their national resources, the idea may have at first seemed strange. It has, however, had two untiring friends: the one the Kaiser, the other Lord Haldane. When the day dawns on which common sense triumphs over national prejudice, it will be seen that it was not for nothing that the former had an English mother, whilst the latter was a translator of Schopenhauer.

When Herr von Kiderlen Waechter declared in the Reichstag that the negotiations between the two countries with reference to the redrawing of the map of eastern Europe, after the war, had been marked by an intimate confidence, which he was convinced would characterize their relations in the future, his words were received by those present in a manner very different from the scene which, not very many months ago, accompanied an attack on the United Kingdom in the same place. The tone of the German press has not been less cordial, and if particular organs on either side of the North sea have exerted themselves to maintain the old strained relations, they must have reminded their readers rather of the proverbial pelican in the wilderness than anything else.

Sir Frank Lascelles, sometime British ambassador at the court of Berlin, and undoubtedly one of the true friends of the Anglo-German entente, not long ago noticed the extraordinary fact that every move of the United Kingdom toward a rapprochement was received in Germany with increasing contumely and suspicion. The phenomenon was so incongruous that it could not permanently endure. In proof of this, a single sentence from a responsible minister at a critical moment, has dissipated it, it is to be hoped finally. A' sudden turn of the political wheel had brought Germany full circle to an imminent danger. Committed by her treaty engagements to a quarrel in which she had much to lose and nothing to gain, she found it in the power of Downing street to make things at least difficult for her. To her surprise, perhaps, but not to the surprise of those intimately acquainted with British politics, Downing street proceeded to assist her in clearing the situation. The Wilhelmstrasse contained men gifted with sufficient breadth of view to recognize the fact, and the incident has done more to make possible the task of Prince Lichnowsky than any quantity of speeches or any ingenuity of diplomacy.

Advocates of reform of the Indian bureau will find that Secretary Fisher of the department of the interior in his annual report to Congress shows the advantage to the government that would follow creation of an adequate staff organization. Property in land belonging to the Indians, valued at more than half a billion dollars, is under governmental control. The "human interests are than are the property interests," and the two, as Secretary Fisher says, are inextricably connected. Business and executive ability of the highest order, "coupled with sound and far-seeing views of public policy and a keen understanding of and deep sympathy with sociological questions involved on the human side" are needed. The service imperatively calls for an increase of first class men in the responsible directing positions. As at present organized and remuncrated, the service is not attractive to the grade of men desired. Nothing is said in the report, we note, about clearer definition of the status of the head of the bureau, both as related to his official superior, the secretary of the interior, and to subordinates. It was the opinion of experts discussing this matter at Lake Mohonk this autumn that here was the crux of the matter. High grade men for bureau chiefs will hardly be found until this matter is made right.

Dissolution
That Does Not Dissolve

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT decrees dissolving certain well known industrial combinations have operated simply to compel John Doe, a shareholder, to take bonds and stocks of the concerns out of one pocket and to put them in another. Richard Roe, another shareholder, has found that this method of dissolving trusts into their original components has worked out to the decided advantage of both John Doe and himself, since it has given a stability to the little enterprises in which they are concerned that they never had before. The shareholders in the industrial combinations referred to are all John Does and Richard Roes, and they are all feeling quite comfortable. The Union Pacific Railroad Company owns, it seems, $126,000,000 par value stock of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, from which it is about to be separated by decree of the United States supreme court. Now, since under the terms of that decree, the Union Pacific Railroad Company must no longer own this interest in the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, Robert S. Lovett, chairman of the executive committees of the two corporations ordered divorced, proposes that the shares represented by this interest be transferred, through process of sale, as dividends or otherwise, to the stockholders of the Union Pacific, the distribution being on a pro rata basis. This would make everything as comfortable, apparently, for the John Does and the Richard Roes in the Union Pacific railroad combine, as a previous arrangement has for the John Does and Richard Roes in the dissolved industrial combines.

It is worth while to remark that the Union Pacific stockholders are in all probability the Southern Pacific stockholders, so that in case of such a transfer as Chairman Lovett recommends, there would be a general shifting of shares among the shareholders from one

Attorney-General Wickersham does not like this plan. In fact, he has disapproved of it so positively that Chairman Lovett has given notice of his intention to go to the supreme court for authority to carry it out. The plain people of the country will very likely agree at once with Mr. Wickersham that the stock should be placed in the open market so that whoever so desires may purchase it. All the better, too, if it passes into the hands of stockholders in rival corporations. To allow the stockholders in one of these companies to own a controlling interest in the other might be small improvement on the arrangement now existing by which one corporation, as a corporation, owns a controlling interest in the other.

Nothing of the kind may have been in Chairman Lovett's thought, but his proposal may seem likely to bring the Sherman law and the supreme court and the government of the United States into ridicule. If accepted it would not only defeat the one end of combine dissolution, but, in view of what has happened in relation to the dissolved industrial concerns, make a farce of it. It is not impossible that the methods at present employed to cripple or destroy monopoly are futile; presumably they are well meant, and the dignity of the nation and the law demands that they shall not be brought into derision and contempt by representatives of the interests which they are intended to regulate and control.

In PERMITTING its routine to be disturbed, and by a two thirds vote, in order that the Burnett immigration bill might be placed upon its passage, and in passing that measure by a vote of 178 to 52, the House at Washington on Wednesday proved responsive to a sentiment that is rational, non-partizan, patriotic and nation-wide. This bill is a substitute for the Dillingham bill, passed by the Senate in the last session and providing for a general revision of the immigration laws. The Burnett measure simply amends the existing statutes by making it requisite that aliens above the age of 16 seeking admission to the United States, shall be able to read and write in English or in some other language. It is provided, however, that aliens who can show that they are fleeing from religious persecution shall not be subjected to

Test for

this test nor excluded because of inability to meet it. That this legislation is intended to work no serious hardship to immigrants is well understood even by its opponents. The United States owes it to itself and to those aliens and citizens of foreign b:rth and extraction already within its borders, that some restriction shall be placed upon immigration. It is not claimed, and it cannot be claimed, that the illiteracy test will admit all desirable or exclude all undesirable immigrants, but it has the merit, at least, of being a test, even though an inadequate one, as to the intellectual fitness of those who knock for admission. The fact is susceptible of demonstration, and it has been demonstrated thousands of times, that under the greatest stress of deprivation and oppression persons of ordinary capability learn, at least, to read and write to the extent that would bring them well within the requirements of such a test as that provided for in the bill just passed by the House. It is not asking too much, in return for the opportunities and privileges granted the newcomer to these shores, that he shall bring with him, at least, an assurance of ordinary intellectual capability.

The Burnett measure was opposed in the House by Democrats and Republicans representing constituencies largely composed of foreigners. From the point of view of practical politics, perhaps, it seemed necessary for them to take this course, but they will hardly be able to justify it before their own consciences. Nothing can be plainer to the observant American citizen than the fact that immigration has reached a point where it must either be regulated or altogether stopped. Talk of the unlimited power of American assimilation, in the face of an ever-increasing flood of unrestricted foreign immigration, is simply grandiloquent and nonsensical. Senator Lodge is entirely right in holding that the Burnett bill leaves much to be desired, but it counts for progress, and until the country can obtain a better measure this one should be gratefully received.

Cavalry Remounts It is reported that the chief instructor in the mounted service school at Ft. Riley in Kansas has said that the supply of good horses, especially for cavalry use, does not keep up as it should and apparently that European countries are better provided in this respect than the United States. Here we have the opinion of a professional soldier and one who belongs to an arm of the service in which a skilled knowledge of horses is essential. It is in no way proper to raise any alarm about what this gentleman has said but it is idle to contend that unless he be very much mistaken his words must have a great deal of significance.

The whole problem is this; so long as armed forces of men are found necessary for the protection of a country as against other powers and for certain police functions within its bounds, no matter how small such force may be, it is unpardonable not to have it as efficient and as well equipped as may be. On the score of actual money expenditure, it is useless to make any excuses, because the American army is the most expensive in the world. "This fact is not to be laid at the doors of the federal war department but to various causes over which its officials have little or no control; American standards of living, a public untrained in the necessary art of domestic economy, the unreasonable protective tariff that makes the American a very highly taxed man and the cupidity and dishonesty of them that deal with the federal government, all these elements are present when we must account for the cost of the army establishment. But none of these things forms any good argument why the American army should not be provided with as good cavalry remounts as any in the world. If it is not so provided, apart from the highly important question of military preparedness, a grave injustice is wrought upon conscientious officers and upon the enlisted men whom they

The American army has a long and honorable cavalry tradition; from the days of Lee and Marion to those of Crook, Sheridan and Miles, Americans have been able to count on a certain force of hard riding and skilful horsemen. But cavalry must have horses and it would not seem that at present the American supply of trustworthy remounts is anything to boast of. When one considers the millions squandered on public buildings and upon so-called river and harbor improvements, one naturally wonders why a smaller sum could not more reasonably be spent upon an arm of the service that has deserved well of its country. A good supply of horses will for years to come be a necessity in the United States as in other countries, not only for military but for civilian purposes and the posture of international affairs is not such that Americans can afford to overlook that fact.

PRESIDENT TAFT'S decision is for New Haven, Yale and a teaching position in the university law school, and against Cincinnati and practise of law in Ohio and federal courts. Not but that he will find New Haven's nearness to New York and Boston serviceable when he is resorted to as a counsellor. This position he can take with advantage to his purse and his professional standing and yet escape that criticism which

Mr. Taft a Yale Jurist might have come had he decided to take up formal practise and court work, in many cases before judges of his own appointing. The duties of the new post will not be so onerous as to prevent his carrying on much work of a civic kind, for he has made it clear in formal declarations that by returning to the ranks he does not intend to forego active service in politics, partizan and national. As a champion of representative government for the American democracy he intends to continue to fight on with all legitimate weapons. As a former President of the nation and a professor in Yale he will bring to the fray a skill and weight of authority to be reckoned with by advocates of more direct methods of democratic rule.

The academic connection also will count favorably when "Professor" Taft starts on a tour of the world as an emissary of the peace propaganda and arbitration movement. Precisely when this journey will begin is not settled, but it is a shrewd stroke by the pacifists and incidentally it will give an official who has borne heavy burdens an inexpensive outing. Seward, Grant, Roosevelt and Harvard's president emeritus, Dr. C. W. Eliot, during a period extending over two generations, have made tours abroad which have had more than ordinary contemporary significance. Mr. Taft, who already is well known to not a few of the men in power in Japan and China by reason of visits there while on duty in the Philippines, has won an international audience by his connection with the cause of substituting judicial for military methods in settlement of disputes between nations. He has carried the logic of the argument farther than any other American executive has cared or dared to carry it.

Giving the Dollar Its Rightful Value FALSE weights and false measures have been peculiarly odious in the sight of every teacher of morals and every conscientious lawmaker from the time of Moses to the present day. Few offenses have seemed more reprehensible to the righteous in any age than those committed against the unsuspecting and helpless multitude. For the reason that they are chosen by the state to stand between the people and those who may still be guilty of one of the very meanest forms of dishonesty, the sealers of weights and measures of Massachusetts, gathered in convention in Boston this week, have deservedly received a large share of public attention.

The speakers at the convention, without exception, seemed to grasp completely the importance of the task assigned public servants of this character. People of all grades in the social scale should be protected against imposition, but it is especially desirable that this protection shall be thrown most closely around the wage earner and his family. To such the dollar has a meaning that it cannot convey to the salaried, the independent or the rich. It means 100 cents, and it means that it must be spent with the view to making each of the 100 go to the farthest point possible. To take from the value of the wage earner's dollar is to disturb the system under which he and his dependents provide for their daily wants.

It requires closer figuring than the banker or the merchant or the manufacturer engages in to make the dollar of the wage earner work out on the 100-cent basis, rise to the 100-cent standard, for he is at a disadvantage in every transaction from milk to coal. He buys in the smallest quantities and, consequently, in the highest market. If, in addition to this, he pays for more than he receives, or pays for that he does not get—if he be victimized by false weights or measures—then the dollar he has worked so hard to earn, and that at best will scarcely meet his needs, is depreciated, ceases to have the value of a dollar, becomes 60, 70, 80 or 90 per cent of a dollar only, and to that degree cuts down his earning capacity.

The sentiment expressed in the sealers' gathering that it is the duty of these officers to stand between the public and the true value of the dollar is a proper one. The duty is sacred. That it is performed in Massachusetts with regard for the obligations assumed by those who accept such a trust, is not one of the least of the things

THE ethical, economic and political advantages for the United States following restoration of friendly relations with Colombia would be so great that any intimation of such rapprochement must be chronicled promptly and with satisfaction. The dispute is one that technically concerns a very small area of territory, but the moral effects of the course of the larger and stronger republic the commonwealth has to be proud of.

Columbia and Colombia American state have been registered throughout Latin America and have been costly to the United States in prestige and in business. While the American representative at Bogota, in a recent interview, has made it clear that he is in no position to speak conclusively about coming events, he also has let it be seen that Colombians are altering their attitude toward him and toward the proposition of the Washington officials that direct negotiations be resumed with a view to final settlement of Colombian claims. Information from Washington is said to confirm this somewhat altered attitude of the administration and perchance it may be that ere Messrs. Taft and Knox surrender office the divisive issue may pass into the realm of settled problems. Mr. Taft could hardly close his term in a better way.

THERE is a revival of the report that the traction companies of Chicago are to be merged, and that the construction of a subway system is to begin at once. For a community that does so many things with a rush, Chicago has exhibited remarkable patience in dealing with its traction problem.

MR. Wilson is to be held responsible for his administration. Why, then, is it not reasonable to permit Mr. Wilson to choose for his cabinet those who he thinks are most capable of making his administration a success?
